

Wildfire

- Each year fire burns millions of acres of woodland across the United States.
 - Wildland fire knows no boundaries. Local, State, tribal and Federal firefighters all work together to manage wildfires.
 - Structures can be rebuilt and natural resources generally come back in time. A life cannot be replaced.

Thousands of communities are located in fire-prone areas. Residents must take action to adapt their communities to fire. These actions will protect their homes and improve the safety of the public and firefighters.

FEMA

U.S. Fire Administration

For information and resources on this subject, visit www.usfa.dhs.gov/citizens/focus